MAGILL CASE COMES UP MONDAY

Prosecuting Attorney Believes He Has a Strong Case Against the Defendants.

(By Associated Press.)

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 5.—Everything is in readiness for the trial of the Fred Magill-Fay Graham murder case which was brought to Macon county on a change of venue from DeWitt county. The case is second on the criminal docket, which will be the first to be taken up when court meets next Monday. The attorneys for the defense say the accused are ready to face the bar of justice and are confident that the result of the trial will be a complete vindication. On the other hand, prosecuting Attorney Miller, of DeWitt county, who is in active charge of the prosecution, believes that he has a strong case, particularly against Magill. Whatever the result may be, the trial is bound to attract as much attention as ever centered in a criminal case in this part of Illinois. Fred Magill and his wife, formerly Fay Graham, come from two of the most prominent families of the state. Magill and his first wife had never been able to get along and it was common talk that he was paying attention to other women of Clinton, especially Miss Fay Graham, who acted as his stenographer. On May 31 of this year Mrs. Magill, who was familiarly known as "Pot" Magill, was found dead in her home in Clinton, and it was at first supposed that she had committed suicide. The circumstances surrounding the case were of a strange nature, but

Hon. C. N. Haskell, governor-elect, went to Oklahoma City this morning to participate in the opening exercises of the new state fair. "The constitutional provision relating to prohibition is ample authority for me to act at once without waiting for the legislature to enact laws upon the subject," Governor Haskell said this morning. "Some of the lawyers think there is a question about it, but I don't. The establishment of statehood marks an end to the saloon business and every provision of the constitution will be strictly adhered to."

EVIDENCE THAT MAM IN WOMAN'S DISGUISE

Pulled the String That Ex- ploded the Bomb at Baker City.

(By Associated Press.)

Portland, Ore., Oct. 5.—A special from Baker City says: "The newspaper representatives here have established what they believe to be incontrovertible evidence that three men were implicated in the assassination of Harvey K. Brown and that one of them was attired in a woman's kimono."

It is believed the one who posed as a woman pulled the wire which exploded the bomb. It is known that a woman was seen near the scene a short time before the tragedy.

According to the Baker City dispatch three men visited a store in town to purchase a kimono and had a discussion regarding the size of the garment, one declaring he would not wear it as it was too small. Noting the look of surprise on the clerk's face he said it was large for a woman. He purchased a large garment. Shortly before the purchase was made it is said a man visited another store and was shown some Mother Hubbard wrappers, but bought a "Teddy Bear" instead, to divert attention. A witness has been found who saw two men and a supposed woman near the scene shortly before the explosion. Both men asked for matches and tobacco. One of the men bore a striking resemblance to the man who purchased the kimono. The authorities believe the murderers are still in the city.

FRIENDS OF JESSIE MORRISON

Begin a Movement to Secure Pardon for Eldorado Woman Convicted of Murder.

Lanternwood, Kan., Oct. 5.—Friends of Jessie Morrison, the Kansas woman convicted of murder, have decided to ask Governor Hoch to grant her a pardon, and they are collecting letters to that effect. The leading prison officials are in receipt of a letter requesting their assistance, which was sent out by T. A. Kramer, an attorney at Eldorado, Kan. The letter to the prison officials says, in part: "Judge M. H. Morrison, the father of Jessie Morrison, who is now confined in the penitentiary, is old and feeble and crippled and afflicted with what is supposed to be an incurable disease. He has only a short time to live. He is continually worrying about her imprisonment, and if there is anything on earth that would do him any good or give him a further chance for life it would be to have her free. "He has absolutely nothing, in fact, in living on the charity of his relatives. We have decided to make an application for her pardon. We believe that she has suffered long enough and fully as long as will do any good. We would like to have you write a letter to the governor recommending that she be pardoned, in your letter we would be pleased to have you state how she has deported herself since she has been a prisoner and anything else that you can that will help us."

Her Sentence is Twenty-five Years.
Jessie Morrison was brought to the penitentiary the last time May 10, 1903, and has served nearly four years and a half. She was convicted of murder in the second degree and is under a twenty-five-year sentence. Jessie Morrison has had three trials and was under only a five-year sentence on one, which was brought in under and was serving time on when an appeal was made, a new trial granted, and she was taken back to Eldorado and another trial had at which she received the long sentence. Had her attorneys permitted the first sentence to stand she would have been free three months ago.

Jessie Morrison has been an excellent prisoner. She was never reported for refusing to obey the maids or for "impudence," a form of com-
